

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A process for selectively depositing a silicon oxide layer onto silicon substrates of different conductivity types is disclosed. The silicon oxide layer is formed by the ozone decomposition of TEOS at relatively low temperatures and relatively high pressures. Use of the process to produce layers, spacers, memory units, and gates is also disclosed, as well as the structures so produced.